

DOCTORAL PROGRAMME IN TERRITORY, RISK AND PUBLIC POLICIES

Conferences cycle (6 ECTS)

Teaching Staff

José Luís Zêzere (Head Lecturer)

Objectives

The objective is to strengthen the research competencies and the methodological reflection within the risk sciences associated with the information handling, modelling and management. The ability to assess social, economic, cultural and legal risk acceptability, as well as the capacity of combining conclusions and mindsets with regulatory instruments and legal regulations is reinforced.

Programmatic contente

The curricular unit titled Conferences Cycle aims at complementing specialized training by spotlighting new methodologies and contexts.

It is sought to optimize the resources and competences of the three involved institutions, bringing new theoretical frameworks or models under development into the reflection, apart from the directly involved faculty in the doctoral programme. This unit makes up a prime forum for the analysis and debate of new researches, methodological deepening or for new institutional or legal frameworks covering the risk sciences. The curricular unit aims at reflecting on the scientific developments of the research centres associated to the programme (CES, CEG, CESAM), as well as on the established partnerships with other centres. In this context, associating national and international researchers and research project consultants to the programme is intended.
